I was in my freshman composition class when it hit me that I was not at all prepared for college. I missed chunks of the regular curriculum due to my English as a Second Language ESL courses, creating an achievement gap which grew more difficult to close each day. Goodness knows I have in college. They had a three-week summer camp, and I really wanted to take the 3D printing course. All of her words are mumbled and jumbled. There is a tap on my shoulder. Numbers became words, phrases, then sentences. See, with knowledge comes power. we did this my grades went from being low to making great grades! Ward scribbling away on a notepad while we were working independently.
